

Rebecca Garcia-Malone
Assistant Director of Vessel Services
T&T Salvage

Rebecca Garcia-Malone serves as the Assistant Director of Vessel Services for T&T Salvage and is based in Florida. Rebecca is primarily responsible for assisting T&T's compliance team in finding customer-centric solutions to the latest regulatory requirements set forth by the OPA-90 and Salvage & Marine Firefighting regulations in the U.S. She is continuously called upon to help design and participate in both client and government-led emergency response drills and exercises, assist in evaluating and further developing T&T's national response infrastructure, and maintaining T&T's relationships with industry partners and regulators.

Rebecca is also responsible for leading T&T's emergency management training seminars which are specifically designed to educate an array of key maritime stakeholders in risk mitigation strategies and operational sustainability. Rebecca comes from a notable career at Svitzer Salvage (now Ardent Global) where she helped establish and develop the organization's salvage and marine firefighting program and domestic response network. She also serves as an executive committee member for the American Salvage Association (ASA) and in 2016, was elected chair of the association's Education Committee which is committed to supporting career development within the maritime industry with a focus on marine salvage and emergency response. Rebecca also sits on the Education Committee for the International Superyacht Society, has been an active WISTA member since 2016, and is an avid scuba diver and marine enthusiast.
